Wilbur Thompson (actor)
Wilbur Thompson (born Howard R. Thompson; February 18, 1922 – November 18, 1989) was an American actor. Early life Born Howard R. Thompson in Chicago, Illinois, his father, a Baptist minister, had a heart attack before he was born and was out of work for about two years. During that time, his mother, a homemaker, decided to change the family's name from Thompson to Wilbur. He attended the University of Chicago for two years, but he did not graduate from the university, as his parents moved to England after a family tragedy when his older sister, Dorothy, died of polio. When Wilbur returned to the United States in the 1940s, he studied drama and dance and worked for a time in Miami. He began acting in the 1940s in the radio plays of Abbott and Costello. He also worked in radio, television, and films in the 1940s and 1950s, including dozens of dramas for Columbia. He also appeared in several films, including Undercurrent, White Christmas, Anatomy of a Murder, and The Yakuza. He played Sam Royce, the father of Clint Eastwood's character, in the 1965 drama Dirty Harry. Later career In the 1970s, Thompson returned to film and television
